National Clearinghouse for Alcohol Information. Law and Legislative Summaries: Federal 1969-1981. Rockville, MD: National Clearinghouse for Alcohol Information, 1982. 37 pp.

This document is a reference source to the "major alcohol-related legislation enacted during the 91st Congress through the first session of the 97th Congress 1969-1981." Over 60 laws have been selected and abstracted providing the reader with the following information: title, law no., sponsor, effective date, session, and a concise but adequate summary of the law itself. Arrangement is chronological according to Congressional sessions.

Unfortunately the indexing is lacking. The "subject" index (the only "index") is a rather broad classification scheme of 16 items: alcoholism facilities, alcoholism staff, elderly, funding, prevention-education, research, etc. If one is looking for a specific law — for example the "Hughes" Act — and the year is not known, one may guess at the possible subject assignment and eventually find the needed item.

The table of contents is basically an index to the laws, included in chronological order, by law number.

The National Clearinghouse has also produced: Law and Legislative Summaries: States for individual years 1979, 1980, and 1981, and Law and Legislative Summaries: Federal, 1979. Available from:

Gelt, Andrew. Index to Alcohol, Drugs, and Intoxicants in Music. 1982. 56 pp.

This bibliography of almost five hundred entries is an interesting and unique collection of publications and works which concern themselves with such topics as: drugs used for payola, rock concert busts, song lyrics controversy, alleged use by performers and performing groups, drinking songs and temperance songs, classical music, ethnomusicology, and sociological, psychological and medical research. The time frame is from 1944-1981 and includes some foreign-language sources. An author index aids as a reference tool. Available from:

U.S. National Institute on Drug Abuse. Guide to Drug Abuse Research Terminology. (Jack E. Nelson et al., eds.) Research Issues #26. Washington, DC: U.S. Government Printing Office, 1982. 132 pp.

Presented in dictionary form, over 1000 terms have been defined in this most recent of the Research Issues Series. According to the introduction the guide is "for those requiring brief, non-technical explanations of drug abuse terms." Also included are some drug organization names with information regarding their history, goals etc., and important drug laws and legislation. Appendices provide information on drug classification, drug slang terms, trade names and acronyms. Availability: (for single issues only):

Pattison, E. Mansell and Edward Kaufman, eds. Encyclopedic Handbook of Alcoholism. New York: Gardner Press, 1982. 1230 pp, includes index.

A new compendium including sections on 1) definition and diagnosis, 2) biology of alcoholism, 3) medical aspects, 4) social dimensions, 5) psychological perspectives, 6) psychiatric disorders and alcoholism, 7) distinctive treatment populations, 8) treatment methods and 9) facilities, and 10) treatment evaluation. It's difficult to find a topic not mentioned here. A definite purchase!

O'Brien, Robert and Morris Chafetz, eds. The Encyclopedia of Alcoholism. New York: Facts on File Publications, 1982. 378 p

Approximately two thirds of this work is arranged in an encyclopedia format, with the remaining Appendices being a collection of statistical tables and charts, the major portion of which were drawn from the NDATUS and SAPIS documents. The statistical information in this latter area concerns age limit for purchase, alcohol education programs, alcohol funding information, alcoholism treatment units, blood alcohol content, economic costs etc. The encyclopedia consists of more than 500 entries "on the substance of alcohol itself, on the social institutions, customs, and socioeconomic interrelations that have an impact on alcoholism, and on the physical and psychological manifestations of alcoholism."

Although the preface notes "to our knowledge this volume is the first A-Z encyclopedia to appear in the field of alcoholism," to my knowledge there are several others: Ernest Hurst Cherrington's Standard Encyclopedia of the Alcohol Problem, 6 Vols., 1925-1930 and The Cyclopedia of Temperance and Prohibition, Funk & Wagnalls, 1891 to name but two.

None the less, this is a more current work and pulls together much of the information needed for day to day reference. Availability:

NEW CHAIRPERSON FOR SALIS

Viesta Morris of the AHTDS Prevention Resource Center in Springfield, Illinois is the new chair for SALIS. She is the information services coordinator for the PRC and is responsible for developing and implementing the Project's extensive statewide lending library. Although relatively new to the prevention field, Viesta has been with PRC since its inception in 1980, and has over ten years experience in information systems, office administration and development. Her experience and background were instrumental in developing the PRC library, which is the only such prevention-related library in Illinois, and the only statewide lending library in the country.

Other hats for Viesta include assistant coordinator of the Capital Area Consortium which is a group of medical, health, academic, special and public libraries that share resources and extend reciprocal services, and member of the following library networks: Health Science Librarians of Illinois, Greater Medical Regional Medical Library Network, Rolling Prairie Library Systems, and SALIS. To contact Viesta and for more information on the Prevention Resource Center see the LIBRARY HIGHLIGHT in this issue.

SALIS DIRECTORY 1984

We are updating the SALIS Directory for 1984 and will need your help in filling out the questionnaires. If your center, library or clearinghouse has a special collection or subject expertise, please include that information in the area under "subject emphasis." Remember this directory is concerned with information about substance use and abuse. Filling in this area with words like "alcohol, alcoholism, drug addiction" doesn't describe your organization's collection. Please try to be more specific. If you have a lot of materials relevant to education and prevention, curriculum, evaluation of prevention, please write that in. We would like to make this directory a useful tool for those who need information in specific subject areas.

Also if you know of a state agency or private collection of materials that should be included in the update, please send their name and address to me as soon as possible.

WHAT'S NEW IN REFERENCE SOURCES

Andrea Mitchell, Librarian

Register of United Kingdom Alcohol Research 1982 — 1983. Compiled and edited by C. Jane Pattison, Alcohol Research Group, Department of Psychiatry, University of Edinburgh, Scotland. 1983.

Brewers' Society
42 Portman Square
London W1H 0BB
Price: Free

According to the preface, this document was created to 1) provide a general description of current major United Kingdom research activities related to the use and misuse of alcohol; 2) provide a list of persons and agencies actively engaged in this research; 3) provide a list of agencies currently funding this research. In total there are 303 entries. Each gives title, summary of the research, names of the principal researchers, department or institution undertaking the research, organization providing financial support, starting and completion dates, and subjects to which the project is cross referenced. In addition there are subject, name, institution and funding indexes to provide easy access to the entries.

BIBLIOGRAPHIES

Abel, Ernest. Fetal Alcohol Syndrome, Volume I. An Annotated and Comprehensive Bibliography. Boca Raton, Florida: CRC Press. 1981. $64.95.

Abel, Ernest, Compiler. Alcohol and Reproduction: A Bibliography. Westport, Connecticut: Greenwood Press, 1982. $29.95.

The first of these two bibliographies is part I of a three volume set dealing with the fetal alcohol syndrome. Volumes II and III are edited works on Human Studies and Animal Studies respectively. The bibliography, Volume I, contains over 1000 references arranged alphabetically by author. Of these, more than 300 have been annotated and arranged in the first half of the book by various sub-classifications such as placental transfer and fetal distribution, drinking during pregnancy, case studies, epidemiological studies, teratogenic studies and biochemical changes. Also included in this work are some references pertaining to the effects of alcohol and sexuality. While journal articles make up the bulk of this work, a few conference papers, theses and books are included. Foreign language titles are translated for the convenience of the user. The time period ranges from 1842 to 1979.

In comparing these two bibliographies, the second and more recently published contains more citations — over 2000 — covering the time period from 1842 up to 1981. The arrangement of the latter is alphabetical by author with a subject index of 16 pages providing more in depth subject searching of the topic in question. Although material on sexual behavior, sexual function and sexual physiology are also included in this publication, the majority of citations pertain to fetal alcohol syndrome. If one has to choose one or the other for purchase, I would recommend the Greenwood Press edition. It has more references, is more current by two years, provides greater subject access, and costs less!

O'Farrell, Timothy J. and Carlyn A. Weyand. Alcohol and Sexuality: An Annotated Bibliography on Alcohol Use, Alcoholism, and Human Sexual Behavior. Phoenix, AZ: Oryx Press, 1983. $37.50.

This bibliography, focused on the topic of alcohol and human sexual behavior, includes 542 citations covering a time period from 1900-1982. The work is divided into the following four sections: I. Effects of Alcohol Use and Abuse on Sexual Function, II. Nature and Treatment of Sexual Problems among Alcoholics, III. Social Problems and Cultural Issues Relating to Alcohol and Sexuality (this section includes Sexual Deviance and Crime, Venereal Disease, Homosexuality and Alcohol and Sexuality in the Media), and IV. Literature Review and Commentary.

Articles, conference papers, and books make up the bulk of the work including some foreign language publications. Most of the items have abstracts (with the exception of a few of the foreign language entries). Without the abstracting and indexing section of the Journal of Studies on Alcohol, this kind of publication becomes more and more valuable.

Barnes, Grace, compiler. Alcohol and Youth: A Comprehensive Bibliography. Westport, Connecticut: Greenwood press, 1982. $45.00

There are over 4,500 citations listed in this work, arranged alphabetically by author. A subject index provides coverage to this exhaustive literature with such terms as country, ethnic group, laws, attitudes, peer group influence, prevention, education, religion, children of alcoholics, rural-urban differences, etc. Foreign language titles are included and translated to English. Journal articles, books, theses, government reports, conference papers and popular literature were drawn from the extensive search of the Journal of Studies on Alcohol, Index Medicus, Current Contents and other primary and secondary sources. According to the preface, "The majority of the citations were included only after an informative abstract or the article itself was reviewed for its relevance to youth and alcohol." To my knowledge, this is the most comprehensive bibliography on this subject that has been published.

NIDA TOLL FREE NUMBER FOR PREVENTION TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE

(800) 638-2045 (National)

(800) 492-2948 (Maryland residents only)

Effective April 15, 1983 the Prevention Branch of the National Institute on Drug Abuse will have an 800 toll free number to provide technical assistance to parent groups, schools, service organizations, local and state governments, private industry and other prevention related groups.

Technical assistance on how to develop, plan, deliver and evaluate prevention programs is available. Emphasis on utilizing local resources and linking with existing networks is a key strategy. NIDA supports the growth of local programs and further exploration of existing demonstrated prevention approaches.

As a further evolution of the Pyramid Project, Prevention Branch staff will provide both off-site and on-site technical assistance. The off-site technical assistance will be in response to calls on the 800 toll free line and to letters requesting assistance in curriculum or program development. On-site technical assistance will consist of identification and partial financial support for consultants to provide a direct service in prevention strategy design or delivery. The Branch has technical assistance days available on a cost-sharing basis through the Pyramid Project contract; the effective date of this new contract is estimated to be May 1, 1983. In addition, Prevention Branch staff continues to provide on-site technical assistance upon request.

NIDA's Division of Prevention and Communications has fostered collaborative efforts among local community programs, and their Single State Agencies, as well as national coalitions of major service organizations. The toll free number is one approach demonstrating the Division's commitment to prevention.

The AHTDS Prevention Resource Center, a project of AH Training and Development Systems, Inc., was organized in 1980 as a principal support for the development, continuation and enhancement of programs addressing the prevention of alcoholism, alcohol abuse and other related issues. We are under contract with the Illinois Department of Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities, Division of Alcoholism and serve all of Illinois.

The AHTDS Prevention Resource Center maintains two libraries in Illinois. The libraries are under our Information Services Section and are an integral part of PRC's services, working very closely with other Project Sections. The collections contain over 5,000 volumes of curricula, program abstracts and bibliographies to assist programs in prevention program development (i.e. needs assessment, program planning); program management (i.e. organizational development, evaluation, marketing); funding and training, as well as general prevention information. We subscribe to over 200 journals and newsletters and have over 50 audiovisuals which are available on loan. Our specialized collections cover a broad range of special populations including children of alcoholics, parents and family, women, elderly, youth and multicultural groups.

PRC's library serves the prevention information needs for all of Illinois and is consistently utilized by educational institutions, alcohol and drug agencies, parent and community groups, governmental agencies, and mental health centers. The library has responded to over 3,000 patron requests during its three years of operation.

Other information services include interlibrary loans, literature searches through Dialog and film location (locating and setting up rental of films).

AHTDS Prevention Resource Center also provides on-site consultation and training workshops, special statewide workshops and activities, speakers bureau and a quarterly newsletter Prevention Forum. PRC offers assistance in constituency development, prevention program development and program management. All of PRC's services are available free of charge in Illinois. AHTDS can provide any of these services outside of Illinois for a negotiated fee.
